

NextGen DERMATOLOGY

SATURDAY, 28 JANUARY 2023

Time passes, and despite the constantly improving medical and surgical techniques for anti-aging, it is still necessary to think about the future of our profession and the training of the next generation.

The NextGen Dermatology module has been designed for this: to expand both the future education and practicing network of young dermatologists. Many of them are interested in interventional and aesthetic dermatology, and the training—although excellent in university hospitals—can be inconsistent and often lacking in these fields.

Through this module, we offer a solution by providing an opportunity for young physicians to learn from prestigious international speakers and experts in the fields of clinical, surgical, and aesthetic dermatology. With the inclusion of the cosmetic specialty, the event also embraces the interconnected practice of clinical and cosmetic work, exploring the bridge within all practical areas of the dermatological field.

We also seek to foster the work and recognition of upcoming generations through the establishment of the NextGen Dermatology Award. The event will host a selection of the best abstracts and current work of resident dermatologists to an international jury and medical audience. The top presentations will be awarded for their outstanding work and contributions to their field.

So join us, and don't hesitate to submit your abstracts ! We look forward to seeing and celebrating our resident dermatologists at this unique session created for you.
